UNPUBLISHED EMENDATIONS BY PETER ELMSLEY ON EURIPIDES AND ARISTOPHANES

Several books once owned by the English classicist Peter Elmsley (1774-1825) are now in the Bodleian Library, Oxford. Some contain extensive annotations in Elmsley's hand. These are written in different inks (sometimes in pencil), which indicates (as we might have expected) that they were not all composed in a single sitting. No dates are given, however. Almost all the notes are emendations. Much of the material contained in these marginalia was published by Elmsley during his lifetime, in his own printed editions or in reviews of the editions of others. But some of it has never previously appeared. Of the unpublished emendations, several can be immediately discarded because they have subsequently been found in manuscripts, or were anticipated by scholars writing before Elmsley. Other emendations were made by Elmsley's contemporaries or successors, or do not appear to have been made before. It is with these that I am concerned.

The most interesting volumes are both dated to 1806: anonymous editions of Euripides' Electra (Auct. S inf. 1.11)ⁱ and Alcestis (Auct. S inf. 1.12)ⁱⁱ, published at Oxford for use in Westminster School, Elmsley's alma mater.ⁱⁱⁱ The catalogues of the Bodleian and British libraries attribute the Electra edition to Peter Elmsley, although there is no external evidence to support this.^{iv} Recent editors of Euripides' Electra^v do not refer to the book, although it contains one emendation which they attribute to a later scholar, F. A. Paley (at line 1141, dai/mosin qu/ein se xrh/ in place of transmitted xrh/se dai/mosin qu/h). This should now be awarded to 'anon., fort. Elmsley'. Apart from this there are no significant printed emendations in the book. The Alcestis edition is attributed to Thomas Gaisford in the British Library catalogue and to Elmsley in the Durham catalogue. The former is almost certainly correct, as J. H. Monk also attributes the edition to Gaisford in his edition of the Alcestis (Cambridge, 1816).

The Electra contains 32 emendations, the Alcestis 16. These exclude readings which were (a) already proposed by earlier scholars, (b) later published by Elmsley himself or (c) which have subsequently been found in mediaeval manuscripts. They fall into three categories, listed below. I have marked with an asterisk those emendations which Diggle accepts into his text. I begin with the Electra.^{vi}

(i) 7 are attributed to a scholar who postdates Elmsley: 7 g 0 e1qhke (R. Haupt, who has *e1qhke), 14 e1leip 0 (Paley), 22 pai=d 0 u9p 0 (Paley), *117 Tunda/rew (Dindorf), 315 e3draisin 0Asia/dej (Zuntz)^{vii}, 490 po/da (Diggle), *776 kaino\j (Kvicala – THE ‘c’ IN THIS NAME SHOULD HAVE A SMALL ‘v’ ON TOP).

(ii) 12 are attributed to a scholar contemporary with Elmsley: *19 h4 (Seidler 1813), *27 sfe bouleu/santoj (Seidler), *121 zo/aj (Hermann 1816), *324 ou1pw xoa/j pot 0 (Porson 1807), *374 ta1ra (Seidler), *513 oi]n (Schaefer 1811), *548 e0re/sqai (Matthiae 1815), 672 oi1kteiron (Dobree), 685 ktanei=n (Seidler), 1117 kai\ su/ g 0 (Blomfield), *1148 <e0n> (Seidler), *1207 fonai=sin (Seidler).

(iii) 13 are unattributed: 8 hu0tu/xhsen, 23 ei]xe nin, 122 Ai3da (0Ai/da Hermann 1816), 243 tw~nd 0 e1t 0, 442 Eu0bw|~daj (Eu0boi=daj Seidler), 571 pai=da, 751 ei1xomen, 793 o9 d 0, 967 ou0 (for h]), 972 h]n, 1106 e1pi, 1149 a0rxe/laj, 1250 se pto/lin.

And for the Alcestis:

(i) None is attributed to a scholar postdating Elmsley.

(ii) 11 are attributed to a scholar contemporary with Elmsley: 34 sfh/lanta (Monk 1816)^{viii}, *49 xrh|= (Schaefer), *118 a0po/tomoj (Blomfield, ap. Monk 1816), 206 ta/sd 0 (Lenting teste Wecklein)^{ix}, *229 pela/ssai (Erfurdt), 523 moi=ran (Blaydes)^x, 674 a1nac (for w} pai=; Monk 1816 has w}nac), 795 pi/ei (Herwerden teste Wecklein)^{xi}, *1002 prou/qan 0 (Monk 1816), 1110 do/mouj (Monk 1816), 1119 nin (for nai/) (Weil)^{xii}.

(iii) 5 are unattributed: 64 kai\ (for h]), 329 e0moi\, 342 a9marta/nonta, 347 me (for mou), 625 pai=d 0 (for to/nd 0).

These emendations could have been made at any point between 1806 (the publication date of the editions) and 1825 (the date of Elmsley's death). Three marginal emendations which Elmsley subsequently published appeared in the years 1812, 1813 and 1814, although this need not mean that the others must come from before this period. However, the fact that many of Elmsley's other published emendations on the text of these plays do not find a place in his marginalia may suggest an earlier rather than a later date for these notes. In the case of group (ii), it is unlikely that Elmsley took the emendations from the published works of those scholars who are traditionally credited with them. If he were doing that, he would most likely have included many more, given the great number of excellent emendations which, say, Seidler included in his edition (cf. e.g. his palmary tako/man for ta\n ko/man at El. 1209^{xiii}). Since we do not know whether Elmsley had priority in the case of any given emendation, all those in group (ii) should now be attributed to him as well as to their traditional author. The emendations in group (i) can all be awarded to Elmsley, except that at Electra line 7 our apparatus should read ‘e1qhke R. Haupt (g 0 e1qhke iam Elmsley)’.

What of the new emendations, those in group (iii)? None is certain. Some are best forgotten, such as El. 1149 a0rxe/laj. But several are attractive without being compelling, such as El. 751 ei1xomen, 967 ou0. It would be surprising if none of them found at least a place in the apparatus of a future edition.

I take the remaining Euripidean volumes in order of publication, followed by an edition of Aristophanes. Again, an asterisk before an emendation means that Diggle prints it in his text, or, for Aristophanes, that N. G. Wilson prints it in his forthcoming Oxford Classical Text. Groups (i) and (ii) refer to emendations made by scholars after Elmsley and contemporary with Elmsley respectively. Emendations in the former should henceforth be attributed to Elmsley alone, and those in the latter to Elmsley as well as to their traditional author.

This volume also includes Phoen. *423 ka1dwke/ g 0 (Schaefer), and Med. *1290 dh=t 0 (Hermann), which are in Auct. S. infr. 1.10.

3. Auct. S. infr. 1.14: J. Markland (ed.), Euripidis Supplices Mulieres (Oxford, 1811) and Euripidis Iphigenia in Aulide et in Tauris (Oxford, 1811).

(i) IT 468 toi=n ce/noin (Diggle), IA 84 dh=ta (Nauck, noluit Markland), 967 e0strateu/omen (Monk)^{xx}, 1026 poi= (Wecklein).

4. Auct. S. infr. 1.18: P. Invernizi (ed.), Aristophanis Comoediae (Leipzig, 1794).

- (i) Eq. *1270 <a0ei\> (Dindorf), Vesp. *665-6 speaker attributions (Liston)^{xxi}, Eccl. *367 a9nh\r (Reisig).
- (ii) Vesp. *1262 ta1r 0 (in fact ta]r 0) (Hermann)^{xxii}, Av. *1438 toi (Dobree)^{xxiii}.

This volume contains an emendation on the Acharnians which is also found in Elmsley's 1809 edition of the play: namely, a9nh\r at 494 (written a9 0nh\r), which is attributed to van Leeuwen in S. D. Olson's recent commentary (Oxford, 2002).^{xxiv}

Elmsley's papers also include two sets of notes preparatory to an edition of the Helen.^{xxv} In the former we find the emendation e0xqi/sthj at line *72, which Diggle attributes to Dingelstad.^{xxvi} In a letter to Blomfield written on 8th February 1813^{xxvii} Elmsley says that he is preparing an edition of the Helen similar to that of his Heracidae, so the notes probably date to around that time.^{xxviii}

Lee Library, PA 3462 .W34x 1844). I owe my knowledge of the American copies to Dr Christopher Stray.

^{iv} Elmsley's chief scholarly concern at this period was his edition of Sophocles, published in Edinburgh in 1805 or shortly afterwards, and of which only one copy survives (see my article 'A newly-discovered edition of Sophocles by Peter Elmsley', GRBS 47 (2007)). But he was also working on Euripides. In a letter to his old friend Charles Watkin Williams Wynn (1775-1850), written at Edinburgh on 10th June 1803, he says 'I have finished the text of Sophocles. and am employed in the notes, or rather, various readings. I have printed an Edition of the Medea of Euripides, by way of experiment, with many alterations in the orthography. Among others I mark the long vowels (A, I, U.) whenever they occur. The printers have not the common mark a, e, i, o, u [[ALL WITH LONG MARKS ON TOP]] united to Greek characters, for which reasons I am forced to use the soft spirit, of which I make no other use. This will appear uncouth to the eye, but in a single play it is of no consequence' (National Library of Wales, Coed y Maen bundle no. 10 (92 letters, dating 1796-1824, numbered 776-869), letter 792). Elmsley later published an edition of the Medea in Oxford in 1818 (2nd edition 1828). The preface makes no reference to an earlier version, nor have I found any mention of it elsewhere.

Bentley advocates w)nh\r, while Brunck prints w(0nh\r: both of these are simply different ways of representing crasis of ο9 + α0nh\r. Olson attributes these changes to Ribbeck duce Bentleio and van Leeuwen respectively (noting in the latter that Brunck has w(nh\r).
