

Brown, M., & Tucker, K. (2017). Unconsented Sterilisation, Participatory Story-Telling, and Digital Counter-Memory in Peru. Antipode, 49(5), 1186-1203. <https://doi.org/10.1111/anti.12316>

Peer reviewed version

Link to published version (if available):
10.1111/anti.12316

Link to publication record in Explore Bristol Research
PDF-document

University of Bristol - Explore Bristol Research

General rights

This document is made available in accordance with publisher policies. Please cite only the published version using the reference above. Full terms of use are available:
<http://www.bristol.ac.uk/red/research-policy/pure/user-guides/ebr-terms/>

Acknowledgements

The authors are grateful to:

All of the participants in the Quipu Project in Peru, those who shared their testimonies, organised calls and meetings, and went out of their way to make it work, in particular Esperanza Huayama, Francisca Guerrero, Teódula Pusma, Maruja Alberca Peña, Hermelinda Quinde, Martha Angélica Peña, Josefa Ramírez Peña, Giulia Tamayo, Hilaria Supa, Libia Pinares and Maria Esther Mogollón. The local organisations of women affected by forced sterilisations in Peru that have been fighting for justice for many years and that have worked in close collaboration with us: Convenio IAMAMC-AMHBA (Huancabamba, Piura), AMAEF-C-GTL and the group of sterilised people from the district of Independencia in Ayacucho; and national organisations including IDEHPUCP, GREF, DEMUS, Lamula.pe, and útero.pe.

Rosemarie Lerner, Maria Court, Sebastian Melo and Ewan Cass-Kavanagh, with whom we had the privilege to work on the Quipu Project, and the extended Quipu family who brought it to the world's attention, particularly Sandra Tabares-Duque, Camila de Szyzlo, Julia Gamarra, Alejandra Vélez and Mike Robbins at Helios Labs.

Our colleagues at the University of Bristol who supported this endeavour, and especially Robert Bickers, Andrew Wray, Tim Cole; Jelke Boesten of KCL; and Katy Jenkins and Sian Lazar, who commented on a first draft of this paper; the participants at the University of Bristol Institute for Advanced Studies workshop on 10 December 2015 where we presented the paper; and the incredibly insightful anonymous Antipode reviewers.

Everyone involved in the AHRC REACT-Hub which allowed these ideas to grow, particularly Matt Davenport, Jon Dovey, Clare Reddington and Mandy Rose, and the external members of our Ethics Committee Madge Dresser and Bill Thompson.

We are of course grateful to all the organisations whose funding made this project possible: AHRC REACT-Hub, CrossCurrents Doc Fund, Hotdocs, Tribeca Film Institute, University of Bristol, The Fledging Fund, WMM, FAU and in addition to our generous crowdfunding supporters.

A fuller list of acknowledgements to the large and great team that was essential to making Quipu happen, can be found at www.quipu-project.com.

MB + KT 1-11-16